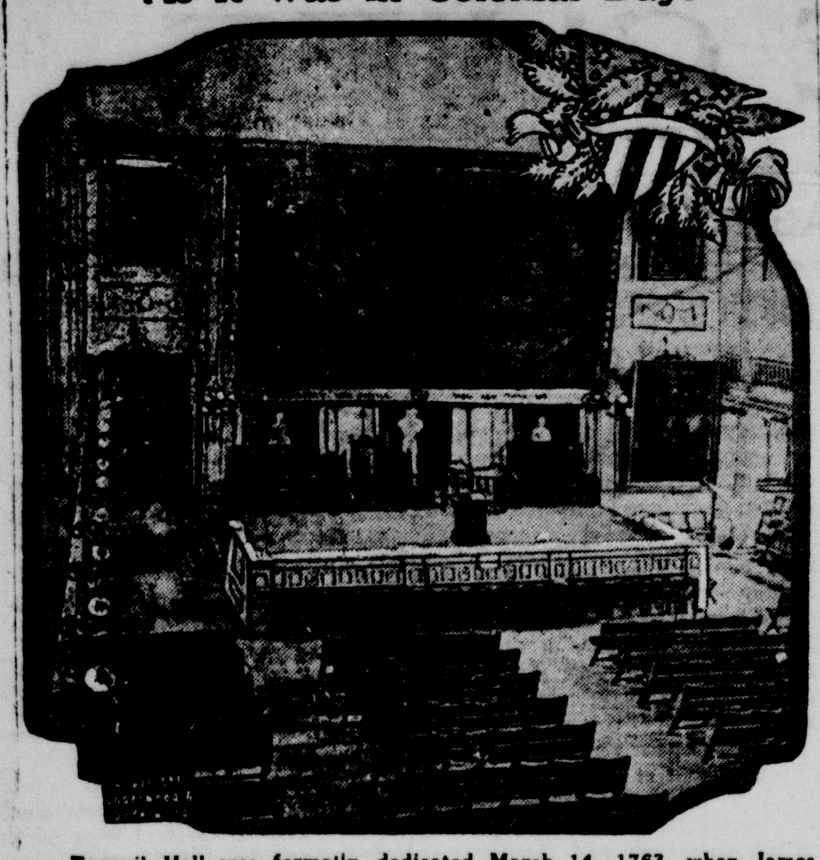
As It Was in Colonial Days



Faneuil Hall was formally dedicated March 14, 1763, when James Otis, the patriot, delivered the address in which he dedicated the hall to the "Cause of Liberty." Town meetings of the Revolutionary period followed.

Faneuil hall in Boston, the "cradle of liberty," probably of greater historical interest than any other building in the United States with the exception, perhaps, of Independence hall, Philadelphia, is to be restored to its original Colonial beauty and completely fireproofed as soon as certain details of arrangement can be completed, the Christian Science Monitor states. Ralph Adams Cram, chairman of the city planning board, has been intrusted with the work of architect. It was he who as president of the Boston Society of Architects, Frank Choteau Brown and several others, worked out the plan in detail several years ago. This was approved by the mayor at that time and $65,000 appropriated for the work. It is this sum that is now to be expended under the jurisdiction of the mayor in fulfillment of a campaign promise, with a possible addition of several thousand dollars.

The countless layers of dirty yellow paint now on the building are to be removed, revealing the original brick. Bricks in the face of the building that have become damaged and apertures that have been filled with putty or cement will be replaced or mended with specially made new bricks and the wooden and cloth awnings attached to the lower story that now disfigure the building will be replaced by an iron veranda with a glass roof in Colonial design. A fireproof stairway will replace the present one to the auditorium on the second floor and a better passageway constructed to the rooms above which for years have been occupied as headquarters and museum by the Ancient and Honorable Artillery company, founded in 1637 as the Military Company of Massachusetts.

Faneuil hall was formally dedicated March 14, 1763, James Otis, patriot, delivering the hall to the "Cause of Liberty." Then followed those town meetings of the Revolutionary period which gave the hall its sobriquet. When the Stamp act was repealed in 1768 the hall was illuminated. On the motion of Samuel Adams which George Bancroft, the historian, says "contained the whole Revolution," the Boston committee of correspondence, whose duty was to "state the rights of the colonists," was stationed there. During the siege of Boston, the hall was used as a playhouse. A play by General Burgoyne, "The Blockade of Boston," with British officers as actors, was broken up at its performance by the news that the "Yanks are attacking our works in Charlestown."

In that hall Wendell Phillips made his first anti-slavery speech in 1837. Daniel Webster, Charles Sumner and other famous men have spoken there.

Ever since the Revolution, Faneuil hall has been the great place for popular gatherings in Boston. Any group of citizens has the right to call a public meeting there, free of cost, on request to the city authorities.

AT YORKTOWN 142 YEARS AGO

How News of Glorious Victory Stirred the Land at the End of the Revolution.

On October 28, 142 years ago, the cry "The war is over!" began to ring through the land, but it was not until four days later, when the official word of Cornwallis' surrender reached the Continental congress that the real celebration began, says the New York Sun. The acclaim with which the news was received, old records disclose, was not unlike that with which the American people in November, 1918, greeted the capitulation of the Hun. There were no limousines dragging tin cans and old wash boilers about the streets, no back-firing motortrucks, but there were—well, here is the story:

The ending of the long struggle for independence was in sight after the hostile army had been driven from New Jersey at the battle of Springfield June 23, 1780. The war, for the most part, was transferred to the southern states, though the British retained control of Manhattan island.

Cornwallis believed in 1781 that if the South could be subjugated, especially Virginia, the war would be won. Lafayette, with his army, was being pushed northward from the Carolinas by the British. Cornwallis finally made his way into the peninsula between the York and James rivers, where he established a base of supplies at Yorktown.

Lafayette was about twenty miles away and in constant touch with Washington, who was waiting information regarding the French fleet. Lafayette wanted to attack the enemy, but Washington deemed such a movement premature.

Washington finally effected a junction with the forces of Lafayette, making an army of 16,000 men, while Cornwallis had about 7,500 bottled up on the peninsula, his only hope being from the assistance which might come to him from the British navy. Vigorously pressing the siege, Washington secured from Cornwallis overtures for a surrender on October 17, and articles of surrender were finally agreed upon. The artillery, guns, accoutrements and public stores of every description were to be delivered to the victors, the officers to retain their sidearms and the soldiers to keep their private property of every kind.

Promptly at noon on the day agreed upon for the surrender, October 19, the gates of the fort were opened and a detachment of American infantry and French grenadiers entered and took possession. Two hours later, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon the enemy marched out, with colors furled, to the tune "The World Is Upside Down."

Washington dispatched with all haste his trusted adjutant, Col. Tench Tilghman, to Philadelphia, where the Continental congress was sitting. The young soldier took the long trip on horseback. Riding practically night and day, he reached the Quaker city at midnight on October 23, four days after the surrender. After finding his way with all haste to the home of Thomas McKean, the president of congress, he rapped so violently the door knocker that one of the night watch several blocks away hurried over to learn the cause of the disturbance.

Soon the news was being proclaimed throughout the city. The cry was taken up, not only by the watch, but by hundreds of citizens, rushing half dressed from their beds into the street. The bellman of the old statehouse was hurried out from his home to announce the tidings; lights were seen moving in every house; the people were astir as they had not been before since the day when the Declaration of Independence had been promulgated; five years before. The city was wild with joy. Soon the cannon were booming. Charles Thompson, secretary of congress, in his rounds of the homes where the members were living, found his errand of notification useless. The patriots were all in readiness for the early morning session and eager to hear the official dispatch from Washington.

A prayer of thanksgiving was offered, several speeches made, and then the congress adjourned to the Lutheran church where at 2 o'clock thanks were given "to Almighty God for crowning the armies of the United States and its ally with success."

Dispatch riders were sent out in every direction, heralds of a new era, the dawn of a democracy, whose influence was eventually to permeate every path of the earth. Congress voted the thanks of the nation and appropriate honors to Washington, Rochambeau, De Grasse, and a day was appointed for general thanksgiving and prayer throughout the Union, for God's great favors to the struggling patriots. Legislative bodies, executive councils, city corporations, private societies, churches and other organizations overwhelmed Washington with congratulatory addresses; bonfires were kindled on the mountain peaks.

Museum Gets Montgomery Relic.

The sword of Brig. Gen. Richard Montgomery of the Continental army, who led the assault on Quebec and was killed at the first discharge of the British infantry on December 31, 1775, was formally transferred to the national museum in accordance with the congressional resolution of February 22.

ROBS CALOMEL OF NAUSEA AND DANGER

Medical Virtues Retained and Improved — Dangerous and Sickening Qualities Removed. Perfected Tablet Called "Calotabs."

The latest triumph of modern science is a "de-nauseated" calomel tablet known to the drug trade as "Calotabs." Calomel, the most generally useful of all medicines thus enters upon a wider field of popularity—purified and refined from those objectional qualities which have heretofore limited its use.

In biliousness, constipation, headaches and indigestion, and in a great variety of liver, stomach and kidney troubles calomel was the most successful remedy, but its use was often neglected on account of its sickening qualities. Now it is the easiest and most pleasant of medicines to take. One Calotab at bedtime with a swallow of water—that's all. No taste, no griping, no nausea, no salts. A good night's sleep and the next morning you are feeling fine, with a clean liver, a purified system and a big appetite. Eat what you please. No danger.

Calotabs are sold in original, sealed packages, price thirty-five cents for the large, family package; ten cents for the small, trial size. Your druggist is authorized to refund the price as a guarantee that you will be thoroughly delighted with Calotabs.—(Adv.) 44-56

"My wife coughed all the time and could not sleep," writes Geo. A. Owens, Bridgeton, New Jersey. "She tried Foley's Honey and Tar and had the best night's sleep she had had for a long time. I used Foley's Honey and Tar and it helped me, too." Insist upon Foley's Honey and Tar. Sold everywhere.

A teaspoonful of Herbine will produce a copious and purifying bowel movement, improve appetite, restore mental activity and a fine feeling of vigor and cheerfulness. Price 60c. Sold by S. P. Smith.

POPPIES GROWING IN TEXAS

In the extreme western part of Texas, not far from the edge of New Mexico, there is an uncultivated field in which thousands of wild poppies are growing, vying with the famous poppy fields of Flanders, France, says the Copperas Cove Crony. It is said to be the only field of wild poppies in the entire southwest. They are a rich golden yellow with a yellowish red combination center. Efforts to transplant them have proved unsuccessful, but, let alone, they are growing more luxuriantly each year and, as the seeds are blown about, the extent of the popy field is gradually extending.

NEWS FROM NEARBY TOWNS AND COUNTIES

DUBLIN

(From the Progress)

The community meetings in the various localities about Dublin announced last week to be held through this week at the various school houses concerning the Farmers Fall Fair at Dublin in September have been under way all of this week and will continue during the coming week to cover all the territory.

The dates for the Dublin Free Fall Fair have been definitely set as September 18 and 19.

Uncle Tom Gilbert reported one day last week the finding on his place of a watch which he had lost seven years ago and which he states was yet in very fair running order. The watch was plowed up by Derwood Barbee who was working in the field where Uncle Tom lost the time piece seven years ago. When found it began running as soon as it was wound and thereafter was taken to a watchmaker who said it was ini fair condition, but slightly rusted on account of the moisture that had entered around the stem and it could be placed in good running order for a small sum.

STEPHENVILLE

(From the Empire)

A car driven by B. B. McBride of Fort Worth, went into the ditch Friday on the highway about two miles east of town near the Babcock dairy. In order to avoid hitting another car Mr. McBride drove out too far and turned over. His mother-in-law and himself were considerably bruised. They were hurried to the office of Drs. Gordon & Gordon and had their bruises dressed. The two children with them escaped injury. They went on to Golthwaite Saturday.

If the rattlesnake that R. E. Garrett of the Pilot Knob community brought into the Empire office last Saturday had been alive, some other fellow would have had to edit the paper this week. We could scarcely keep our feet from carrying us away anyhow! The reptile was killed by Mr. Garrett the previous evening in his pasture. It measured 5 feet 3 1-2 inches long, 8 inches around, weighed 6 pounds and had 8 rattles and was as ugly as "Old Billy Hello." We are glad R. E. stopped his career and also glad that we did not have to do it.

Thirty-two years ago this week the commissioners' court, acting upon a petition from Dublin, in due form, ordered an election to be held July 28, 1891, to determine whether the county site should be moved from Stephenville to Dublin. Some remember the hotly contested campaign that ensued for four weeks and how warm under the collar a few good men on either side became. Both towns rejoiced when the final day dawned that was to determine the issue and end the strife that had been engendered. Dublin received 950 and Stephenville 2,260 votes. Dublin needed two-thirds of all the votes polled in order to have won the contest.

(From the Tribune)

W. H. Morris, former newspaper man of this county and editor of the Tribune, died at his home in Ralls, Texas, last Sunday afternoon and was buried there the following Monday.

A small car driven by A. Q. Jordan of Hico was struck by a local Katy freight train at that place Thursday of last week. Mr. Jordan and his wife were carried some distance by the train. Mrs. Jordan sustained a broken arm and other injuries, while her husband was unhurt. J. C. Lane, occupant of the rear seat of the automobile, jumped and sustained a broken leg.

Captain Thurman Higginbotham states that the boys of the local National Guard company will leave about the fifteenth of July for the annual state encampment at Austin. The encampment lasts about fifteen days and gives the men the service excellent training and provides many interesting forms of entertainment and amusement.

GUSTINE

(From the Tribune)

E. B. Allsup left Sunday with Ed Keith for San Antonio to enter Mr. Keith in the goverment hospital for treatment. Mr. Allsup returned Tuesday and reported that satisfactory arrangements were made and Mr. Keith would receive treatment at once. Many friends of the young man and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Keith, trust that he will soon return home entirely restored to his normal health.

J. M. Marshall and Omer Tullis of Comanche were in our city yesterday on business and paid this office a pleasant call. Mr. Marshall coming around to push the figures on his paper up a year. Joe is an old Gustine boy and still has a warm place in his heart for the old town and many friends here.

J. W. Robinson and J. L. White had business in Comanche this week connected with the school, getting the business relating to the school bonds in tangible shape.

N. E. Palmer and his mother, Mrs. J. E. Palmer, and sister, Miss Eva, left yesterday for Millisand, N. M., to visit Mrs. Palmer's brother, N. E. Sellman.

J. H. Huff and his bride of only a few days, of Comanche, were visitors to our city Wednesday, Mr. Huff coming to supply those who are in need of glasses, Mrs. Huff coming to keep her husband company and to see what sort of town we had.

Rev. Jack Scott of Throckmorton occupied the pulpit of the First Baptist church Saturday night, Sunday at 11 a. m. and Sunday night. Good crowds greeted him each time and enjoyed his splendid sermons.

Mrs. James A. Greer and Miss Vera Boiles were in Comanche Saturday. Returning they were accompanied by Miss Grace Boiles, who is attending school at Comanche, to spend Saturday night and Sunday with home folk.

W. M. and E. D. Odell have returned from their visit to the old states, having spent a most delightful time with relatives and old friends, visiting both in Georgia and Tennessee.

Miss Vera Boiles and Annie Laurie Duke, who are attending the summer school at Stephenville, spent the week end last week with the folks at home.

GOLDTHWAITE

(From the Eagle)

B. B. McBride and little son and daughter and Mrs. J. N. Keese, while enroute to Dallas, ran their car into a deep ditch near Stephenville last Friday afternoon. The car was not turned over but they struck the bank with such force that the glass in the sides was shattered and the occupants badly shaken. The broken glass cut Mrs. Keese and Mr. McBride, but the two children were unhurt. They were rushed to Stephenville, where 14 stitches were taken in Mr. McBride's arm and two were taken in Mrs. Keese's hip. J. N. Keese and Carl left for Stephenville immediately after hearing of the accident and brought them in on that night's train. Both are doing well.

BROWNWOOD

(From the News)

L. M. Cravens of the Winchell community, was a Brownwood visitor Friday, and reported that the grasshoppers are more numerous than ever in that section, and are doing great damage, not only to cotton, but to corn and other grain crops. He said that you could see heads of grain literally covered with the hoppers like a swarm of bees after they have settled on a limb. and that they only require a very few minutes to eat the whole thing. In discussing the hoppers, however, Mr. Craven said the field trap as outlined in this and other issues of the News is being extensively used, and is proving by far the best and most effective method of extermination. Two or three farmers tried it out at first, and the results were so successful that the rural phones were used to tell other farmers about it, and now there are scores of them either built or building.

County and city officers Wednesday brought in what was left of a 30-gallon copper still for making whisky, which they had located in a pasture 9 miles south of Brownwood, on what is known as the Ridge road. The other parts of it, together with a barrel of mash, had been destroyed by the officers. No arrests were made in connection with the capture.

DE LEON

(From the Free Press)

William L. Livingston, aged 70 years, father of M. Livingston of this city, died Tuesday evening at eight o'clock at his home near Indian Mountain. The elder Livingston came to his death in a peculiar manner. Last fall a horse stepped on his toe, crushing the bone. He neglected to see a physician, being of independent disposition in such matters, and at the end of three months his toe was in such serious condition as to make it necessary to amputate two joints.

Instead of healing after amputation blood poison set up. The foot was removed at the ankle and the poisoning continued. Finally the limb was amputated just below the knee. But the poison had so thoroughly saturated his system during the three months prior that his case was hopeless. Besides Marvin Livingston there are two other living sons and two daughters. His wife also survives him. Funeral services were at Indian Mountain last Wednesday, being conducted by a Primitive Baptist minister, deceased being of that faith. Livingston came to Texas from North Carolina nearly half a century ago, settling near Hico.

Oil and Gas Man Says Comanche Co. Crops Best In Texas

(De Leon Free Press)

Laten Stanberry, chief deputy supervisor in the Texas railroad commission oil and gas division, was in De Leon today on business and being an old newspaper man and an acquaintance of the Free Press editor for a number of years, called to pass the time of day, inspect our plant and "talk shop" for a while. Mr. Stanberry was formerly in the printing and publishing business at Arlington.

Mr. Stanberry is making an automobile tour over the state in the interest of his department. A little over a week ago he left Austin, traveled north through Bell, Williamson, McLennan and Tarrant counties, thence westward along the T. & P. out to Pecos and Ft. Stockton, thence southward to San Angelo where he drove over Tom Green, Schleicher, Reagan and other counties in that section, thence to Ballinger, Coleman, Brownwood, Comanche and into De Leon.

The interesting part of the story is that on the entire 1200 mile trip he declared he had found better crop conditions in Brown and Comanche counties than anywhere on the trip. Our cotton, he declared, is much better than it is in Williamson and Bell, the banner cotton counties, and our corn and small grain beats McLennan and Hill.

The report gave the Free Press editor a distinct feeling of satisfaction and we pass it on to our readers for the benefit cheering news may bring.

LOWE URGED FOR SENATE

The friends of Mr. W. E. Lowe of De Leon are urging him to make the race for the state senate to succeed Senator J. H. Baugh, resigned.

In the judgment of the Chief the people of this district would be fortunate indeed to secure the services of a man of Mr. Lowe's experience and capacity. Mr. Lowe has for thirty years been a close student of conditions in this section of Texas and is thoroughly conversant with our needs. During this time he has been successfully engaged as stockman, farmer and banker. He retired from the bank some years ago to look after outside interests.

If all the people of the district knew Mr. Lowe as the people of his home county know him he could have this place without opposition. We trust that he may determine to become a candidate.

COUNTY FAIRS OF MUCH BENEFIT TO PEOPLE

(David Lemon in the Wortham Journal.)

A close examination of the county fair proposition in the state of Texas will reveal the fact that almost without exception, every important and leading county in the state successfully holds a county fair. Some of the fairs, like the Freestone county fair, is in its infancy, others are older, and some are even traditional. These counties have seen fit to maintain their fairs year after year, and consequently have forged ahead of the counties that have not had the benefit of a fair, and now they are looked upon with admirtation by all sections of the state.

In some counties we find more than one fair. In Dallas county, for instance, there are held annually five fairs besides the great nationally known State Fair. In Lamar county six of the leading towns have annual fairs, including Paris, the county seat. Other counties are doing the same thing, and are enjoying prosperity, because their citizens are interested, and pride themselves upon their exhibits and their ability to produce better products, an interest and ability that have grown out of ideas gained at their respective fairs, and from other fairs.

But it is nothing but natural that they should be proud, for pride is a trait peculiar to all human nature, and when that pride is pointed to with admiration by friends and neighbors, it becomes a mark of distinction, a mark that comes only to progressive people and progressive countries.

Doug: Our Deserving Office Devil, Says——

When comes the glorious summer morns and bright spots of the year,
I'm always glad that I'm alive—quite glad that I am here.
I look upon the beauties of the dawns and then rejoice
That I couldn't have had them better if the Lord had given me choice.
I am thankful for flowers and things I find here in these parts,
And say let's keep the flowers abloom within our lives and hearts.

Comanche County on a Summer Evening

(By F. A. Reid, Comanche Route 1)

Editor's Note—This is the story awarded the $2 cash prize offered last week by the Chief for the best write up of any trip in Comanche county made last Sunday afternoon.

Sunday afternoon! What a beautiful Sabbath day it is!

We see a new beauty everywhere as we motor across the country and upon entering the pretty little town of Comanche we see scores of tourists passing to and fro.

The bright smiling faces of little girls with their many colored dresses make a picture that is not easily forgotten.

Driving slowly around the court house we hear the familiar ding-dong of the town clock as it strikes the hour of five. We gather speed and motor westward toward Round Mountain, one of the most beautiful places in all the country about.

To the right and left we see acres upon acres of cotton, corn and other feedstuff; herds of Hereford and Holstein cattle roam the hillsides, all of which goes to convince even the most casual visitor that it is a land of peace and plenty.

We park our car by the roadside and taking our basket of lunch we walk across the rising slope that is covered by a mass of underbrush and wild flowers. We are quite warm by this time and feel much refreshed after taking a drink at the nearby windmill.

We spread and eat our lunch near the little cabin that nestles at the foot of the mountain. Some one suggests that we climb the mountain—of course we all want to climb it! So, Indian file we slowly wind our way up the crooked little trail that leads to the top; on the huge rock that caps the mountain peak we pause to read the names and dates carved there many years by former visitors.

By this time the sun is sinking in the west and how beautiful it is. Long shadows are thrown about us and a pensive quietness seems to prevail, broken only by the chirp, chirp, of a cricket and the tinkling of a cow bell somewhere in the valley below. We are brought back to reality by the hooting of an old owl from a neighboring mountain reminding us that we have tavried too long already, so we all quickly scrambled down the mountain sides for we must not be late for church.

Ten minutes later we see the bright lights of Comanche, we are just in time for church and as we listen to a wonderful sermon at the close of the day we feel that we have not broken God's commandments, for we are rested in mind and spirit if not in body.

As we drive homeward in the cool night wind and let our mind wander back to the beauties that we've seen in the country about us we have a concieted (?) feeling that: Of all the counties in our Lone Star State, Comanche, the beautiful, ranks first among the great.

OUR NEGLECTED OPPORTUNITY

(Note—This little drama was written and presented to the Chief by one who witnessed the first scene just as it occurred in Comanche. If the imagination has been drawn on for the second scene, we know that it is still true in substance to what is occurring daily.—Editor.)

Scene 1—The public square of Comanche.

An automobile stops in front of a store and the driver goes into the store.

Tourist—Where is your tourist park?

Merchant—I am sorry to say that we haven't one.

Tourist—That is one thing that a town needs nowadays.

Merchant—Yes, there has been some talk about one but there hasn't been anything done about it.

Tourist—A tourist park certainly helps a town. When one travels he has to spend money and when he stops in a town he spends more money in proportion than any citizen of the town. He spends money at the garages, filling stations, grocery stores, drug stores, bakeries, and in fact every business.

Merchant—Yes, we ought to have one.

Tourist—In Vernon (a town no larger than this) at this season the tourist park has from seventy-five to one hundred and fifty cars in it every night.

Merchant—You are right. Many people travel by auto these days.

Tourist—How far is it to Brownwood?

Merchant—Thirty-one miles.

Tourist—I guess I will have to drive over there before night.

Merchant—We hope to have a park some day.

Tourist—Yes. You will come to it some day.

He gets in his car and drives off.

Scene 2—The Brownwood road.

The tourist and his family driving toward Brownwood.

Tourist—We must hurry and get there before the stores close. We must buy some groceries.

Mrs. Tourist—We must have our extra tires fixed and fill up our gasoline tank, also.

Tourist's Child—Dad, we are going to a show in Brownwood, aren't we.

Tourist—Yes, we will go after we buy everything we need for tomorrow's journey.

BALLINGER LEDGER IS COMPLIMENTARY TO JUDGE BAUGH'S APPOINTMENT

In regard to the recent appointment of Hon. Harvey Baugh of Brownwood, now member of the state senate from this district, the Ballinger Ledger has this to say:

"Press reports from Austin state that Senator J. H. Baugh has been appointed as a member of the court of civil appeals to succeed Judge C. H. Jenkins. Judge Jenkins, who is now associate justice of the third court of civil appeals, has been named chairman of the state codifying commission and Gov. Neff immediately appointed Senator Baugh to take Judge Jenkins' place. The judgship pays $5,000 per year, and the term of office is for six years. Judge Baugh will serve out the unexpired term of Judge Jenkins, at the end of which he will probably offer for re-election.

"Judge Baugh was formerly associated with Judge A. K. Doss in law practice in Ballinger. He served as a major in the arm yduring the war with Germany, and returning to Ballinger at the close of the war, he resumed his practice here, and in the meantime was elected to represent this district in the state senate. He moved to Brownwood about one year ago. His acceptance of the appointment just tendered him will create a vacancy in the senate and leave this district without a senator.

"Judge Baugh has many friends in Ballinger who will be glad to know that he has been appointed to a place on one of the most important courts of the state. He wil succeed one of the best known and ablest jurists in Texas, Judge C. H. Jenkins, also of Brownwood."

Mrs. D. M. Hilliard and daughter, Miss Jewell, and C. F. Jacobs visited with Mrs. Hilliard's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Doggett, at Caraydan from Saturday to Monday.

New Portrait of Washington

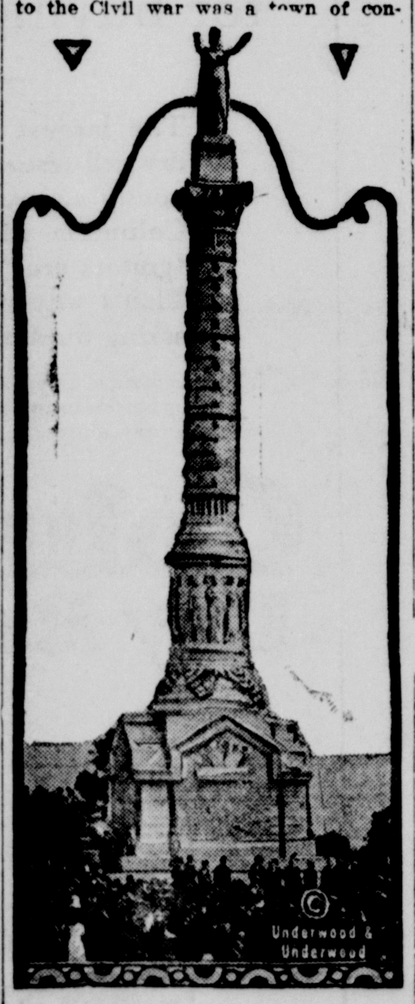
Plan to Mark Historic Sites at Yorktown

After the lapse of nearly a century and a half it seems highly probable that something will be done to preserve and mark the historic sites in Yorktown, Va., the scene of Lord Cornwallis' surrender and of stirring incidents in each succeeding war of the nation. Yorktown was partly destroyed by the British in 1812, again by the Union troops in 1861, and during the World war Yorktown was an important naval base and mine depot.

The Society for the Preservation of Virginia Antiquities has preserved many interesting relics and maps, and a movement is now on foot, fostered by the Colonial Dames, to have congress appropriate a sufficient amount to restore the ancient fortifications, lay out roads, and erect monuments and markers at the historic sites.

Yorktown, established in 1691 by decree of the king of England, was purchased from Laurence Smith. The site covered 50 acres, and was paid for with 10,000 pounds of tobacco, the currency of the colonists. It occupies a bluff above the York river, and prior to the Civil war was a town of considerable population. On the main street of Yorktown was the first custom house established in America, the port of entry for New York, Philadelphia, and other northern cities.



Surrender Monument.

Oldest House Still Occupied.

The oldest house now standing in Yorktown was erected in 1699. Its brick walls are still in an excellent state of preservation, and the house is occupied as a residence. The Yorktown inn, another landmark, was erected in 1725, and here were entertained many distinguished visitors, including Washington, Cornwallis, Lafayette and Virginia notables of the Colonial period.

The present courthouse stands on the site of the original house of justice, which was built in 1697, but like a majority of the original structures, was destroyed by Union troops during the Civil war. Other historic places are the Nelson house, headquarters for Cornwallis during the siege of Yorktown; the Moore house, [illegible] of surrender were [illegible]wallis' cave, which he [illegible]ouse for ammunition, and various redoubts erected for the defense of the town against Washington and his troops.

There are but two monuments at Yorktown. The most imposing one, standing within the town limits and overlooking the York river, was authorized by a resolution of congress on October 29, 1871, but was not erected until 1881-82. It cost $95,000, and is a memorial of victory. The inscriptions tell of the surrender of Cornwallis, the treaties of peace that followed, and other historical statements. The monument is 95½ feet high.

Marks Surrender Spot.

A plain little marker stands on the probable site of the surrender. It was built by a superintendent of the national cemetery which adjoins it, who was hopeful that the government would erect a larger one in time. Disputes arose as to the exact scene of the surrender, and no action has yet been taken. The marker, scarcely 20 feet in height, is slowly disintegrating.

Original fortifications, built by the Americans and British, still are in a fair state of preservation. One of these is Fort Hamilton, a British redoubt, so named because it was stormed and taken by Col. Alexander Hamilton in the latter days of the siege. It is to preserve and properly mark these historic sites that the Colonial Dames are bending their energies to have a sufficient appropriation made by congress.

July Fourth

Backward again our country looks to see
The far beginnings of this fateful day;
This day which once meant death or liberty,
The opening of a new and untrod way.

What pages since have in our nation's life
Been written both in blood and lines of fire;
What growth and gains, with vital import rife,
Have raised us high, and still our hopes inspire!

Grant, gracious God, that we, like those of old,
Our lives, our fortunes, and our all may yield
That this fair land shall freedom's birthright hold.
Be Thou, as then, Thyself, our sun and shield,

Our sun to light the path our feet should tread,
Our shield to guard from unsuspected foes—
The foe without, the foe within more dread—
From wreckful war and subtle treason's woes.

So may this day with every fresh return
Behold us richer in earth's best estate—
High aims that shall like quenchless beacons burn,
To guide the world to ends supremely great.

—Phillip B. Strong, in Kansas City Star.

Robertson-Lane Nuptials

(From the Meridian Tribune)

At the home of Hon. and Mrs. E. B. Robertson in Fort Worth on Sunday morning, June 24, 1923, at 10 o'clock was solemnized the marriage of Miss Wenona Malinda Robertson, of Meridian, and Mr. Floyd H. Lane, of Comanche, in the presence of only a few friends and relatives.

At the appointed hour, the bride, accompanied by her uncle, Hon. E. B. Robertson, who gave her in marriage, descended the stairs preceded by Miss Linnie Cooper, of Meridian, maid of honor, and Mr. Gilbert Robertson of Fort Worth, best man. They continued their march to the altar in the living room where they met the groom. Dr. Culver of Fort Worth pronounced the ceremony in a most beautiful and impressive manner. At the close of the ceremony congratulations were extended after which Mr. and Mrs. Lane left for a visit to Dallas and other places, after which they will be at home in Comanche.

The living room had been very tastefully decorated with flowers and ferns for this occasion. ,

The bride wore a costume of geige crepe with accessories to match, and carried a bouquet of sweet peas.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Robertson, of this place, and is one of our choicest young ladies. From a little girl she has grown up in our midst, honored by old and young alike. She has ever been a bright star in the home circles and now she has gone to reign as queen in her own home.

Mr. Lane is a prominent business man of Comanche, and is considered one of the substantial and coming young men of that part of the state.

This event marks the most important mile-stone in their lives. We wish them a long life and bespeak for them much happiness.

The living room where the ceremony was performed was beautifully decorated with cut glass baskets and vases of Shasta daisies, lilies and fern. The bride wore a charming sport suit of orange crepe ratine with corsage of roses and maiden hair fern.

Miss Kittle is the charming daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Kittle and was reared to womanhood in Comanche, where her sweet and amiable disposition has won for her a host of friends. She was a member of the graduating class of 1920 from C. H. S. and attended Carr-Burdette College in Sherman. The groom is the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. FILM REVIEW

THE BACHELOR DADDY

(By Mrs. I. M. Cochran)

Never have I seen a more wholesome, refreshing picture than "The Bachelor Daddy." Thomas Meighan, Beatrice Joy and five famous screen kiddies, give you a picture as true to life as if you had clipped a page from memory of your own "kid days."

With action changing swiftly from New York to the west, and characters undergoing tests which bring out the best qualities in a man, you are held with breathless interest throughout.

Engaged to a girl whom it has taken generations of idle women and hard working men to produce so fragile a creature, Richard Chester finds that she lacks the heart of a mother. A month before his wedding he is left with five children, the gift of a dying friend. Imagine, if you can, five kiddies in a Pullman with a brand new Bachelor Daddy who knows nothing of parental firmness. Surviving the ordeal of traveling across the continent with these new children he is confronted with an outraged mother and her daughter who refuse to give up a dog in order to make room for this ready made family. He turns in desperate need to his secretary who has a heart full of love for the motherless children. He was so busy loving a worthless girl he didn't know that real love was right beside him until baby hands led him to happiness.

It is a picture that will surely lead you to recognize the finest things in life. It will warm the cockles of your heart and send you away smiling.

What The Farmer Said

A prominent farmer came to mill last Tuesday and bought his flour and meal. He hasn't, on the two farms he owns, any good wheat land, so we asked him why not buy wheat this year and put it in the mill for his bread needs. He replied: "That's just what I am going to do. I told one of my neighbors yesterday that if we farmers would do as we ought, not a grain of this wheat crop would be shipped away. We lose money both ways when it is." No "bunk" in that is there?

WISE AND OTHERWISE

Individual capitalists and individual wage-workers, corporation and union, are alike entitled to the protection of the law, and must alike obey the law. Moreover, in addition to mere obedience to the law, each man, if he be really a good citizen, must show broad sympathy for his neighbor and genuine desire to look at any question arising between them from the standpoint of that neighbor, no less than his own, and to this end it is essential that capitalist and wage-worker should consult freely one with the other; each should strive to bring closer the day when both shall properly realize that they are partners and not enemies.—Theodore Roosevelt.

The Widow's "Might"

Home of Mrs. Wright at Gough, Ga.

A True Story

In 1922, Mrs. Mittie L. Wright, of Gough, Burke County, Ga., raised 16 bales of cotton on 15 acres of land, with the sole assistance of her children, under most unfavorable weather conditions and the worst boll weevil year that Burke County has known.

In a year when many white farmers were abandoning their farms, and thousands of negro farmers were leaving the South on account of inability to successfully combat the boll weevil, this widow raised more than a bale of cotton to the acre.

She was enabled to do this because she protected her cotton with HILL'S MIXTURE at minimum cost and trouble. The boll weevil didn't get her cotton. Hill's Mixture was put on in the day-time, by her children, without any machinery.

HILL'S A BOLL WEEVIL TRADE MARK MILLER MIXTURE

Most Effective and Least Trouble of Any Poison!

Hill's Mixture is a liquid poison, composed of calcium arsenate, molasses, water and secret ingredients which form a combination that we are convinced, from results obtained, attracts the boll weevil.

Hill's Mixture is manufactured in the South's largest boll weevil poison plant.

The calcium arsenate, molasses and other ingredients are accurately measured in the exact proportions, and thoroughly mixed by machines which distribute the poison evenly in the molasses. Every mix is chemically analyzed before shipping.

Hill's Mixture is approved by the Georgia State Board of Entomology as a boll weevil poison.

It can be put on the plant in the day-time, by inexperienced labor without machinery. It is only necessary to touch the bud of each plant, about every 10 days till six applications have been made, and only the very heaviest rain will wash it off.

Protection For Your Cotton.

The price of Hill's Mixture is 82c per gallon in 50-gallon barrels, freight prepaid to any Ark., La., Okla., or Texas point; slight freight charge for other states. $3.00 charge for barrel, which will be refunded when barrel is returned in good condition.

Place your order with my agent whose name is shown below. Hill's Mixture is economical, efficient and easy to apply.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

Sauce for Spring Lamb

To obtain the best flavor from mint sauce, pour a little boiling water over the mint and sugar before adding the vinegar. The full essence of the mint will be drawn out in this manner.

The Garden Hose

If the garden hose has tiny leaks in it, try painting it on the outside with pliable roofing paint and see if it won't last this season anyway.

Dainty Kitchen Curtains

Attractive kitchen curtains are those made of plain or plaid muslin, with a blending of checked gingham instead of a hem. The colors in the binding can be chosen to correspond with the kitchen.

For the Knitter

A couple of corks are handy articles in the knitting bag, as they can be put on the ends of the needles when putting the work away and keep the stiches from falling off. They are particularly handy when compelled to stop in the middle of a row.

$1,000 ON STOMACH

I had several hemorrhages from an ulcerated stomach and was in a dangerous condition. I have spent upwards of $1,000 with doctors and medicines but Ferrasal has given me more relief than anything I have ever tried. After taking it for ten days I could eat anything I wanted, even peaches. I certainyy feel indebted to you for Ferrasal worked wonders in my case. Very truly yours, D. L. Irwin. Swimming Pool Near Proctor Becoming a Popular Place

V. L. Moore of near Graham Chapel, three miles south of Proctor, who has on his place a nice swimming pool that he has equipped for the use of the public at the small admission charge of 10 cents, was in the city Saturday. He stated that two swimming and picnicking parties from Comanche had recently chosen that pool for their swimming parties, and he expected it to become a popular place with people of Comanche and other places as soon as they realized what a nice pool it is.

The pool is from one to fifteen feet deep, Mr. Moore states, is fed by pure, clear spring water and is never muddy.

MRS. HICKEY SO WEAK COULD HARDLY STAND

Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Her Health

Worcester, Mass. — "I had some trouble caused by a female weakness and got so run-down and weak from it that I could hardly stand or walk across the floor. The doctor gave me all kinds of pills, but nothing helped me. I happened to meet a friend who had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, so I thought I would try it. After taking it a week I began to improve, and now I feel fine and am doing all of my housework, including washing, sewing and house cleaning. I have recommended your medicine to my friends, and I am willing for you to use this letter as a testimonial, as I would like to help any one suffering the way I did from such a weakness."—Mrs. DELIA HICKEY, 4 S. Ludlow St., Worcester, Mass.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Private Text-Book upon "Ailments Peculiar to Women" will be sent you free upon request. Write to The Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. This book contains valuable information.

Two Old Darkies Many Years Isolated From Their Race

Two old negroes living on the line of Comanche and Hamilton counties near Gentry's Mill, the only negroes living in that part of the country as well as the only ones within or near enough the boundary to appear as belonging to this county, were an interesting "find" to a party from Comanche who went out for an afternoon drive and outdoor supper last Sunday.

"Uncle Alex" and his aged sister belonged to Mr. Gentry, the founder of Gentry's Mill, before the Civil war and after they were set free they took up their residence in a little cabin in that community, where, practically all the time away from others of their race, they have lived 67 years. "Uncle Alex" is now past 80 years old and his sister is four or five years older than he. Both are now considerably crippled up with rheumatism and can scarcely get around. For the most part some of their white neighbors look after their needs.

"Uncle Alex" with his cotton-white head and whiskers looks like the typical old southern darky, but his language has but little of the negro dialect.

In the party taking their supper at Gentry's Mill and stopping at the cabin of the aged darkies were Dr. and Mrs. L. B. Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. John Cunningham, Miss Louise Burks, Mr. and Mrs. Evan Palmer and J. D. Waring. "I don't get far away from the cabin," said Uncle Alex jocularly speaking to them, "for I might get dragged in with a rope, and these old laigs wouldn't take me out of the way very fast now."

They gave him a piece of ice. "Mr. Blank," he said to a white neighbor who happened along at the time, "won't you please put that in a bucket of water, and then the old man will just sit up here and drink ice water and enjoy the evening."

And know that it was with difficulty that the rheumatic old "laigs" could even cross the room, the white neighbor put the ice in the bucket and set it near him.

INFORMAL REUNION HERE BY FRANKLIN FAMILY

It was quite a little family reunion, though informal, that Mrs. J. J. Franklin, who lives at present at Blanket, enjoyed through part of this week and last with four of her daughters in the home of Mrs. D. K. Doyle, the only one of them now living in Comanche. Those from out of town for the visit were Mrs. May Ramsey of near Santo, Palo Pinto county, Mrs. Fannie Magee of Quanah and Mrs. Rena McDaniel of Dalhart. The members of the family not present were Mrs. Bessie Jackson of Paint Rock, who was being installed as acting postmaster at Paint Rock and was prevented from coming by some official requirements of the position at that particular time, and Beeman Franklin, who is in California.

This was the first visit of Mrs. Magee to Comanche in eighteen years. As Miss Fannie Franklin she was once, and for some years, one of the best known teachers in the Comanche schools. She was accompanied on this trip by her oldest son, Edward Magee, and bride, and her daughters, Alice, Zana and Mary Anna, and her son, Jack. She is now serving her second term as district clerk of Hardeman county. Her mother and sisters have visited here more frequently, and more recently than she, but no member of the family has made her home here in the last twenty years until within the last month.

Besides the L. B. Russell family and other relatives here the visitors met with many old time friends. The five girls of the Franklin family grew to womanhood in Comanche and had many friends here who admired and loved them for their beautiful traits of character—which they have retained and brightened with the passing of the years. One of them married the present editor of the Chief, but outside of that there has never been anything against any of them and nothing to be said of them except in praise.
